“ This project is an ingenious way of working within convention, but not quite really. Overall the spaces give a semblance of following all the rules but look closer and there is innovative thought and design employed behind every corridor and desk ”

- Editor Preeti Singh

PROJECT CONCEPT

The headquarters of 'Volvo-Eicher' is designed to be a state-of-the-art steel building for the engineering group, which uses the least amount of energy and resources possible in its day to day functioning. The building uses a large proportion of re-used material and an extremely high percentage of easily renewable materials. It is defined by a unique span-free steel structure, which is set outside of the main building envelope and designed on the principle of a stabilised cube, which is diagonally braced.
